

NEGRO COUNTRY CLUB COMING TO ORLAND TWP.

It is reported that a negro organization has leased or bought a tract of land formerly the old Burkhardt farm on the north side of 143rd street about a mile and a half east of Keane Ave., east of Orland Park. The tract lies immediately across the road from the beautiful estates of L. E. Russell and Ray M. Holton. According to information received, this negro organization is going ahead with plans to erect an elaborate club house and to lay out an 18 hole golf course. It is said that considerable Chicago negro capital is behind this organization and the plans call for a complete country club for negroes only.

A number of property owners in Orland township are very much incensed over this proposition on the ground that with negroes buying or leasing property in this township will cause property values to decline. An appeal has already been made to supervisor Charles Doctor to formulate some method with which to prevent the negroes from getting a property foothold in Orland township, but he states he fails to see how this can be done.

A number of years ago white and colored promoters from Chicago leased a tract of land in New Lenox township with a view of establishing a negro colony to be known as New Liberia. Streets and lots had all been laid out on paper. The white property owners in New Lenox and Frankfort townships resented this colonization plan. A red hot mass meeting was held in Frankfort and plans were made for a move to stop the colonization plan and the colored colony scheme suddenly vanished in thin air.

If the Orland people resent having a colored country club in their midst, they should engage a good attorney and call a mass meeting and have him explain if anything can be done in a legal manner to prevent the establishment of a colored country club.

Monee Federation to Meet In Chi. Hgts.

The convention of the Monee Federation of North Illinois will be held Tuesday, May 2, at 10:00 a. m. daylight saving time, in the Methodist church corner Oak and 16th streets, Chicago Heights, Illinois. A good program has been prepared. All Mokena ladies wishing to attend please notify Rev. Moritz or Mrs. E. P. Krapp. Everyone is welcome.

Tinley Garden Club

SPRING'S FLOWERY SHAWL
From stormy cold and ice set free,
The kind old earth is waking;
Tight-sealed on every bush and tree,
The painted buds are breaking.

The sun is summoned by the call
Of Cardinal and Robins;
The weavers of spring's flowery shawl
Select their gayest hobbins.
—Margaret J. Marquart.

The Tinley Park Garden Club met at the home of Mrs. J. M. Klepper on Thursday, April 20th, about seventeen members being present. Mrs. Will Funk gave a report on the flower show, which was very interesting. Mrs. Hug reported on Junior Garden Club activities.

For the program each member wrote a paper on their favorite flower. Their were some very interesting papers.

Mrs. Moss was the fortunate member to receive all of the leaflets. Mrs. Swisher then produced the special garden that she had made called "The Garden of Love Where Good Deeds Grow." It consisted of a flower book-mark for each member. Each member picked a "flower" and then told of some good deed they had done.

After the meeting delicious home-made cookies and cocoa was served by the hostess.

Mrs. Lulu Rodgers as civic chairman has complete charge of the work in the plot across from the Rock Island depot.

Meeting dates are as follows:
May meeting, Mrs. Kehres, June Mrs. Wm. Funk, July Mrs. Werth, at Barron Lake, August Mrs. Florence Anderson, September Mrs. John Funk, October Mrs. John Swisher.

Schedule of Garden Talks in the Wedgewood Room at 2 o'clock:
Tuesday, May 2nd "Flower Arrangement for the Home"; Wednesday, May 3rd "Famous Gardens and Homes of the South"; Tuesday, May 9, "Iris."

NOTICE: Amateur gardeners are invited to enter their gardens in the Tribune garden contest. Entry blanks may be had from Mrs. Clara Giesel. Please get your entry blank in by May 3rd.

Erickson, Mrs. Edward Sievert. 3:00, Benediction, Rev. John Dingle, pastor of the New Lenox M. E. church.

Incidental music was furnished by Mrs. Maude Ayers of New Lenox. Mrs. Frank Alexander and Mrs. John Spuehler of New Lenox were in charge of the quilt exhibit. The reception committee consisted of Mrs. Edward Francis, Mrs. Roy Devore, Mrs. Irene Townsend, Mrs. T. J. Doig, Mrs. John Dingle.

Play at St. Mary's Hall, Mokena May 14

The play "Uncle John's Private Secretary" which the D. D. G. Dramatic Club of Chicago is going to present at the St. Mary's hall in Mokena on Sunday afternoon, May 14th, is said to be a very worthy production and a large attendance is anticipated. In fact, all the plays which have been presented at St. Mary's hall have been excellent and have drawn capacity houses.

John Helenhouse Is Named Orland Park Police Chief

John Helenhouse was appointed as Police Chief of Orland Park at the village board meeting Monday night. His salary was fixed at $5 per year with an additional $2 for each fine collected.

The first job Chief Helenhouse had was Tuesday morning when he found a drunken man lying in the ditch near the Archie Kay place. The man who was a stranger, was taken to the village jail and after he sobered up it was found he had $25 in cash in his pockets, so he was put aboard a bus and sent to Chicago from whence he came.

Police Chief Helenhouse is going to strictly enforce the collection of peddlers licenses and especially of four bakery trucks which come in from outside towns each week and who have been selling their wares in Orland Park without paying a license.

Chief Helenhouse holds two chief titles as he is also the Fire Chief of Orland Park.

Teachers Sell School Warrants For Salary

Closed banks and non-payment of taxes have hit the school treasurers in Will County pretty hard. Some of the teachers have not been paid for months. At Mokena the school teachers are selling their school warrants to people who have money to invest.

ORLAND POST TAKES HAND IN P. O. SQUABBLE

The Orland Park postmaster appointment problem has flared up into white heat. A number of citizens of Orland Park have been circulating a petition to be sent to President Franklin D. Roosevelt as outlined in last weeks paper, asking that the appointment be made from those who took the civil service examination for this office last fall.

Tuesday night the American Legion Post No. 526 of Orland Park, also circulated a petition which reads as follows:

A Resolution
WHEREAS, A member of this organization, Post No. 526 American Legion, Orland Park, Illinois, Department of Illinois, has been removed from his position as Acting Postmaster of Orland Park, Illinois without cause, and who has conducted the office and performed the duties thereof in a businesslike manner, to the entire satisfaction of the people of Orland Park, Illinois, and who has taken the prescribed examination for the office of postmaster and qualified himself for appointment; and

WHEREAS, his successor, who was appointed Acting Postmaster, did not attempt to qualify for the office and did not attend or stand the examination held for the purpose of qualifying for the office; and

WHEREAS, three members of this post and a total of thirteen citizens of this community did take the examination held for the purpose of qualifying for the office of postmaster of Orland Park, Illinois; and

WHEREAS, the added expense to the government of holding another examination for the office of postmaster would be a violation of the will of the people in this period of economic distress; then

Be it therefore, Resolved by Orland Park Post No. 526 American Legion, in a regular meeting assembled in their hall in Orland Park, Illinois, that we recommend to the President of the United States, Washington, D. C. that the appointment of Postmaster for Orland Park, Illinois be made at once from the qualified applicants for this office; and

Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be mailed to the President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Washington, D. C., Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Senate House Washington, D. C., Senator William H. Dieterich, Senate House, Washington, D. C., Edward A. Kelly, United States Representative of the Third District of Illinois, Glenn Southers, Commander of the Fourth District, American Legion, Department of Illinois, J. L. De La Cour, Chairman of the Cook County Council, American Legion, Department of Illinois, William Kolman, Mayor of Orland Park, Michael J. Flynn, Palos Park, Illinois and Andrew J. Ludwig, Orland Park, Illinois, and James A. Farley, Postmaster General, Washington, D. C.

Adopted this Twenty-fifth day of April, Nineteen Hundred Thirty-three

Herman Kruspe, Post Commander
Harold J. Ferrin, Post Adjutant
John Andres, a Legionnaire who has served as temporary postmaster since J. F. Schmaedeke resigned as postmaster, was recently removed and A. J. Toelle was appointed in his place. Mr. Andres is a Republican and Mr. Toelle is a Democrat.

Mrs. C. S. Nebeker, New PTA Head

The monthly meeting of the Mokena P. T. A. was held Tuesday evening, April 25th. The president, Mrs. Wm. Lowe, due to illness at her home, was unable to preside. Mrs. Ferguson, the vice president, took the chair.

The election of officers for the coming year was held and the following officers were elected:

President, Mrs. C. S. Nebeker
Vice-President, Mrs. M. Krapp
Secretary, Mrs. A. Pfleger
Treasurer, Mrs. John Balaz

Mrs. M. Krapp read a splendid article from the Child Welfare magazine and the Three Aces favored the gathering with a number of musical selections.

Henry Seehausen New Co. Board Head

Henry Seehausen of Crete, well known to many Mokena people, is the new Republican County Board chairman of Will County. He was chosen Monday at a meeting of the County Board of Supervisors at the court house in Joliet. On the first ballot he received a tie vote, the vote standing 15 to 19 with Supervisor Heeg of DuPage as the Democratic opponent. On the second ballot the vote was 18 to 20 in favor of Mr. Seehausen. This keeps the county board under Republican control. The country districts having the largest representation on the board are now in control of the entire county board.

Mokena School Holds Preliminary Contests Wed. Night

The preliminary literary contest to select Mokena's representatives to the Junior Six Conferences was held in the high school gymnasium Wednesday evening. Nine young artists participated in the three literary divisions. In the dramatic division the following pupils were entered:

Russell Lauffer, "The Cremona". Bernice Hostert, "His Flag." Grace Moriarty, "They Grind Exceeding Small." Virginia Brown, "Joey's Friend." Eleanor Hall, "For the sake of a Little Child".

The competition was intensely keen. Eleanor Hall was given the decision in this division. Erwin McGovney delivered his oration in a masterful manner. He should make a strong representative in this division. In the humorous division Marie Tierney read "The Jink", Glenn Knakmuhs gave "Jimmy Jones Studies Geography", and Eileen Walsh read "The Intelligent Reply". Glenn Knakmuhs was declared the winner. Each contestant deserves credit for the splendid showing made. May Baker, English instructor in the high school, coached the contestants.

Big Demand For New Deal Memberships

Memberships in the New Deal club are going fast and the management wants to impress the people in this community that when the present supply is gone, there will not be any more available for one month. This unique plan of 30 nights of dancing for $1 has literally taken the country by storm. The pavilion, situated in the midst of 32 acres of woods near Lemont, is being redecorated and will be a pleasure to all who view it. Frankie King and his original WBBM band are to furnish the music and is all set to give the dancers of this community the same high grade music that they have heard over the air so often. For further details of this new club see ad. elsewhere in this issue.

Tinley Park has had two cleanup days this week. Arthur Kampe was the lowest bidder for the job, taking it for $25, which is said to be the lowest price yet paid by Tinley Park for this work.

New Lenox Has

Its First Bar Room

The first barroom ever opened in New Lenox in the history of that village, was opened last Saturday when Bob Welsh opened the Wayside Inn in the old drug store building along the Lincoln highway near the Garman garage.

Mr. Welsh is putting on a big fish fry this Friday evening and will serve beer on draught or in bottles.

Put On An Inspirational Cantata

The Easter cantata presented by the choir of the Dolton Evangelical church in the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena Sunday night, was beautiful and inspiring and was very greatly enjoyed by the large congregation, who as the pastor, Rev. E. J. Moritz, so aptly remarked, hope to have the pleasure of hearing this excellent choir in the near future again.

Rev. Philip Bassler, pastor of the Dolton church, the former charge of the late Wm. Kreis, gave a brief talk on music in the church.

At the close of the cantata, the choir presented Mrs. Bassler, their organist with a beautiful bouquet of flowers in appreciation of her services.

NEW LENOX HOME BURNS

Fire, caused by an oil heater in a chicken house, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Russell, in New Lenox, Sunday night. The place is located in the McIntosh subdivision back of the Edward Francis place. A brood of 300 or more young chickens were burned.

At the time of the fire, Mr. and Mrs. Russell and their daughter were visiting friends several blocks away.

The chicken house was built as a part of the five room home. Both were destroyed and nothing else besides one dresser was saved.

A bucket brigade was formed by neighbors but it was useless. The barn of J. E. Francis which was near the Russell building was saved by firemen of the Joliet fire department who rushed to the scene with a chemical truck.

The property loss was partially covered by insurance but Mr. Russell was unable to estimate his loss.

Tinley Poultry Co., Changes Hands

The Elmore Poultry Co., at Tinley Park have discontinued this business which has been taken over by Harry Fullbrook of Tinley Park including the feed business of the Elmore Company. The new company in charge of Mr. Fullbrook will be known as The Community Hatchery and Poultry Co. Mr. Fullbrook is also running a branch poultry business in Joliet.

The Elmore people will confine their activities entirely to the real estate business.

Next Tuesday night the new village board will take office in Mokena. A lot of important business will be transacted. New committees will be appointed by the new mayor.

May 8th Set As Mokena Cleanup Day

The annual Mokena clean-up day has been set for Monday May 8. All rubbish is to be placed in boxes and barrels and placed so it can be picked up conveniently by the truck driver.

NOTICE

Sealed bids for hauling and disposing of rubbish on May 8th, must be filed with J. G. Oswald, chairman of streets and alleys, or the village clerk, not later than May 2nd.

PAUL J. ROESNER,
Village Clerk of Mokena.

S. HOHENSTEIN MENTIONED AS MOKENA P. M.

Quite a surprise was sprung in Mokena this week, when the report became current that Simon Hohenstein, well known former Democratic supervisor of Frankfort township, and a guard at the Joliet penitentiary for years and a long time resident of Mokena is being slated for the postmastership of Mokena, to succeed Mrs. Daisy Lynk, the present Republican incumbent. The report is that Mr. Hohenstein has the endorsement of the Will County Democratic organization.

Electricity Sales

Show Decline

Electricity sales of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois for the first quarter of 1933 were 10.86 per cent less than in the first quarter of 1932, according to the company's figures made public this week. This decline resulted from a decrease of 7.92 per cent in residential use and a 14.02 per cent drop in large power and lighting business.

In the announcement, James Simpson, chairman of the company, points out that taxes represent a serious burden to the company and that they have a large effect upon the rates paid by customers and the dividends paid to stockholders. In 1932 the company's provision for tax expense was equivalent to an annual charge of $8.00 per customer, and amounted to $3.76 per common share.

Earnings of the Public Service Company in the quarter just past were the equivalent of $1.18 per share of common stock, compared with $2.25 for the corresponding quarter of 1932. For the twelve months ended March 31, earnings were $4.72 on the common stock, compared with $7.92 for the corresponding previous 12 months.

The company has more than 27, 500 stockholders of whom 21,000 live in Illinois and 60 per cent are customers of the company.

"The Army Engineers Built It"

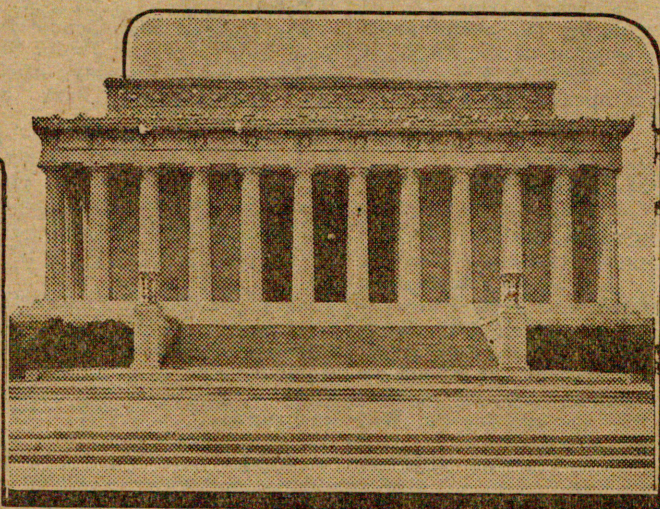

COL. GEO. W. GOETHALS

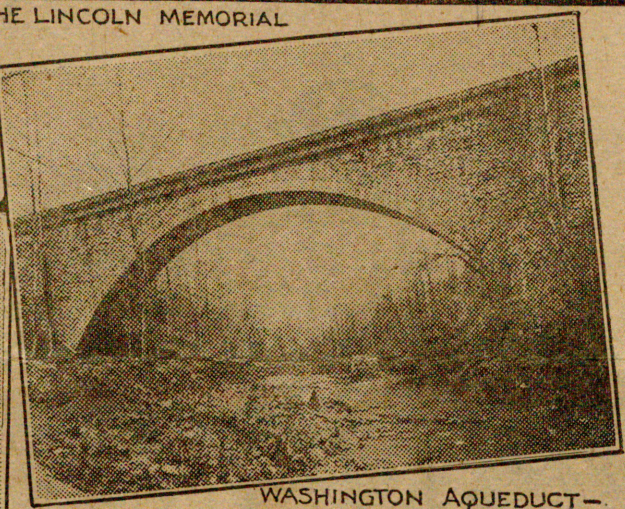

CULEBRA CUT IN THE PANAMA CANAL

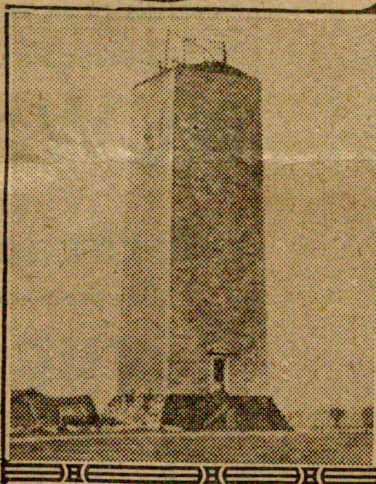

WILSON DAM

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL

WASHINGTON AQUEDUCT—CABIN JOHN BRIDGE

WASHINGTON MONUMENT UNDER CONSTRUCTION IN 1867

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

FROM the earliest days of the Republic, in speaking of some great construction project, to say that "the army engineers built it" has been equivalent to saying that here was a piece of work accomplished with the utmost in efficiency, economy and honesty. Therefore, during the last administration, when it was proposed to transfer river and harbor improvement projects from the corps of engineers in the War department to a division of public works, in another executive department, there was an immediate protest from those who had the best reason to know how valuable were the services of the army engineers in this work and what the result of such a transfer might be upon those very factors of efficiency, economy and honesty.

To many Americans "rivers and harbors work" is synonymous with "pork barrel legislation" by congress. What they do not realize is that for more than a quarter of a century the corps of engineers of the United States army has been the watchdog which has kept rivers and harbors projects from being just that. Its board of engineers on rivers and harbors functions as a sort of supreme court in waterway matters submitted to them by congress. From June 13, 1902, to March 31, 1928, this board of engineers has reported on 2,377 waterway projects. Of these only 805 reports were favorable as compared to 1,572 that were unfavorable. In other words, these army engineers turned down two out of every three projects submitted to them. And the degree of confidence which congress has in the integrity and judgment of the army engineers is shown by the fact that during the last 10 years in less than half a dozen cases has congress authorized the projects upon which the board of engineers on rivers and harbors had presented an adverse report.

Perhaps one reason why the corps of engineers stands so high in the estimation of both government officials and the public lies in the fact that the efficiency and the honesty of the army engineer has become proverbial. Millions and millions of dollars of public money have been expended under their direction without the slightest breath of scandal or question as to their ability. And perhaps another reason for this confidence lies in the close association of the corps of engineers with the United States Military academy at West Point where the motto is "Duty-Honor-Country"—Duty—the bed-rock upon which their character is founded and their careers are built; Honor—the barrier, invisible but invincible, which sets the bounds to their activities; Country—that august, god-like mistress to whose service their lives are dedicated and for whose safety they would lay down their lives in case of need.

The academy at West Point was founded in 1802 as a school for engineers of the United States army, it being the first engineering school in this country. And from the beginning it has been those who have won honors, "the cream of the crop" of new officers, who have been given the privilege of entering the corps of engineers in the army. So there has grown up a set of traditions and an esprit du corps that is difficult to duplicate anywhere in the world. Of the corps it has been said "One of the most wonderful records in the history of the human race is that out of all the thousands of men who have served in the corps of engineers during its century of existence, only one man has ever broken through that invisible barrier of honor."

The contribution of the corps to public service covers a multiplicity of things: Mapping, explorations and surveys; public buildings and city engineering; roads; railways; bridges; siege works; explosives; camouflage and decorative arts; chemical engineering; mechanical and electrical engineering; power plants; field engineering; seacoast defenses and shipping; marine design and operation of boat lines and waterways. It would be impossible within the space of this article to list all of the projects which stand as enduring monuments to the engineer corps of the army, but here are some of their outstanding achievements:

The Panama canal—At first it was under the control of civilian engineers but the men who conquered difficulties which seemed almost insuperable and pushed through to a triumphant conclusion the greatest engineering project the world has ever seen were army engineers. In the minds of Americans there will forever be associated with the name of the Panama canal the name of an army engineer, Col. George W. Goethals, who organized the work, solved complicated engineering problems and problems of supply, personnel and finance and completed the construction of the canal ahead of the estimated time.

The work was organized in three divisions as follows: the Atlantic division under Sibert where was built the Gatun dam, the world's largest earth dam, and the Gatun locks, also the world's largest; the Pacific division under Williamson, which included three locks of the same size but requiring less concrete; and the Central division under Gaillard, which included the Culebra (now Gaillard) cut, the world's largest single excavation.

The total cost of the Panama canal was $370,000,000. The total amount of concrete placed was 5,000,000 cubic yards, the equivalent of a wall 8 feet high and 3 feet wide running clear across the continent, from New York to San Francisco. The total excavation work was 240,000,000 cubic yards.

Another big job which the army engineers did and did with their accustomed thoroughness was in connection with the American Expeditionary Force in the World war. Under the leadership of Langhitt, Taylor, Patrick and Jadwin, here are some of the enormous engineering problems of construction and supply which the corps was called upon to solve: the building of 967 miles of railways; the construction of 600 miles of light railways and the operation of 2,000 more miles of the same class; the maintenance and repair of 1,750 miles of roads; building and operating 107 lumber mills, producing ties, poles, cord wood and over 1,000,000 board feet of lumber per day; erection of 16,000 barracks, equivalent to 311 miles and providing space for 280,000 beds in hospitals, of which 147 miles of wards were new construction; building storage warehouses, covering the equivalent of 500 acres under roof; building wharves the equivalent of seven miles of berthing space for ships; making improvements and additions to existing water supplies and sewerage, among which was a system supplying 4,000,000 gallons of water per day; receiving, storing and issuing 3,250,000 tons of engineer supplies.

The famous epitaph of Sir Christopher Wren, builder of St. Paul's cathedral, might well be paraphrased for the corps of engineers, and the visitor to the National Capital might well be told "if you would see their monument, look around you." The City of Washington was laid out by Major L'Enfant of the French engineers, but it was surveyed by Andrew Ellicott, professor of mathematics at West Point, and the development of the city plan was continued thereafter by army engineers. One of them was T. L. Casey, who in 1867 found the Washington monument 156 feet high and unfinished by civilians in charge. He put a new foundation under the existing monument—an intricate and difficult job, albeit—and finished it to its full height of 555 feet. But the Washington monument is not the only work of the army engineers in Washington. The public buildings there which they constructed include the Capitol, the Library of Congress, the Government Printing office, the State, War and Navy building, the Post Office building and the Lincoln memorial. Moreover the water supply of Washington (the Washington aqueduct) was built and is now being operated under the direction of army engineers.

In the vicinity of Washington are three bridges which are outstanding engineering accomplishments, all built by this corps. They are the Cabin John bridge, completed in 1855, by Meigs which was the longest masonry arch bridge in the world (single span, 228 feet) for nearly 50 years; the Francis Scott Key bridge, built in 1920 by Tyler to replace the old Aqueduct bridge connecting Georgetown with Virginia, and the Arlington Memorial bridge, which is being constructed under the direction of Mehauffey, which is to cost $15,000,000 and which will connect the Mall with the Virginia side leading to the Arlington memorial.

The imprint of the army engineers is strong upon both the highway and railway systems of the country. The famous old Cumberland road, from Cumberland, Md., to St. Louis, the first national highway, was constructed and maintained by officers of the corps of engineers, from 1824 to 1840. The Alaska road commission, consisting of three army officers, has constructed and maintained 1,100 miles of wagon roads, 600 miles of sled roads and 4,400 miles of trails.

Mention of river and harbor work at the beginning of this article recalls the fact that this work was begun by the corps of engineers in 1824, when West Point was the only engineering school in the country. On this account and also because there was then no continuing civil service and because fortification construction was already an organized service of the army, these works were put under the charge of army engineers. From that time to this they have been in charge of the development of this work and up to the present time the investment of the government in these projects is over $1,000,000,000; their upkeep requiring $20,000,000 a year. The corps of engineers now has charge of 200 harbors, 291 rivers and 53 canals.

It is better to give alms than to lay up gold.

Help the poor for the commandment's sake, and turn him not away because of his poverty.

Help thy neighbor according to thy power, and beware that thou thyself fall not into the same.

Do good to the godly man, and thou shalt find a recompense; and if not from him, yet from the most High.

He that requiteth good turns is mindful of that which may come hereafter; and when he falleth, he findeth a stay.

If thou hast abundance, give alms accordingly: if thou have but a little, be not afraid to give according to that little: for thou layest up a good treasure for thyself against the day of necessity.

CAVERN IN HEART OF CORAL ROCKS

Barbados Has One of World's Most Beautiful Caves.

Although there is much to attract the attention of the visitor to the balmy island of Barbados, which is frequently termed "Little England," the principal aim of the souvenir hunter who goes there is to secure the rainbow-hued anemones from the floor of Animal Flower cave one of nature's curiosities.

A short distance from Bridgetown, Animal Flower cave is not a usual haunt of the tourist. Because access to the cave is somewhat difficult hunters for the souvenirs it contains are about the only people to venture through its opening.

It is but one of numerous caverns hollowed out of the coral rocks by the snowy-crested billows that thunder against the pitted shores of Barbados. These waves are constantly urged on by the ever-blowing tradewinds, which give the air the salubrious effect of eternal June.

The roof of the cavern is hung with stalactites, from which clear water drips continually. As the floor of the cave is covered with salt water no stalagmites are formed.

This cave is generally considered to be a sublime spectacle. The long Atlantic roll approaches the headland in great unbroken waves until it comes in contact with the cliffs, when it dashes against them with a deafening roar, filling the opening of the cave with a watery curtain, the effect of which is peculiarly grand. At the commencement, when the masses of water are thick and compact, almost total darkness prevails within the cave. The air then changes to a brownish hue, which melts into a yellow glare until the wave has retreated, when a bright light breaks through the opening, lighting up the cave, again to be darkened by the next oncoming wave.

3 RULES big help to BOWELS

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

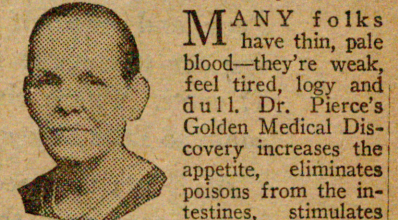

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
 2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
 3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.
- Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Stomach Trouble, Blood

MANY folks have thin, pale blood—they're weak, feel tired, lousy and dull. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery increases the appetite, eliminates poisons from the intestines, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes and you gain in vim, vigor and vitality. This is what Mrs. Bettie Pearson of 305 Clark St., Evansville, Ind., has to say about it: "I recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for people who have stomach trouble or impoverished blood. I have been wonderfully benefited by it myself and I also know plenty of people who have tried it and praised it as a splendid general tonic."

ORLAND PARK

Supervisor Charles Doctor has a real fig tree growing at his place on Wolf road. The tree is three years old and last year it bore several figs, one of which ripened.

The village board met Monday night and the re-elected officials were sworn into office.

The matter of remodelling the village hall so it can be used for storing the fire truck was the subject of much discussion. The committee on public property and a committee of the fire department will confer next Tuesday night on the matter and arrive at some definite decision.

Mrs. Lester Kay who has been ill is somewhat improved.

George Yunker who has been conducting an ice cream parlor and soda fountain the Adolph Zerbs building, is quitting this line and will open a saloon instead.

The Orland Park high school team played the Mokena high school team here Tuesday. The grammar room team played the Willow Springs team.

John Humphrey has returned from New York and expects to remain here for the summer.

The Southwest Towns Bus Line which operates thru here have purchased new buses it is understood and plan to improve the service so the trip from here to down town Chicago can be made in one hour and ten minutes.

The first baseball game of the season was played by the Orland Park team last Sunday when they played Palos Park at Palos, the latter team winning with a score of 4 to 3.

Eight weeks ago when Rev. Mr. Mullen of the Orland Park M. E. church inaugurated the seven weeks "Forward Movement" program, it was generally expected that it would meet with a certain amount of success. The Lenten season has always had the effect to a greater or less degree of making those who have had any sort of religious training, church conscious during this time. This consciousness as a rule, reaches its climax at Eastertide and is followed by a very perceptible decline immediately thereafter. Very gratifying, indeed, was it that on last Sunday, the first Sunday after Easter, the expected decline did not materialize. In spite of the temptation of the first really fine Sunday weather.

DULL HEADACHES GONE SIMPLE REMEDY DOES IT

ther of the spring and the tendency to draw the mind away to the lures of golf courses, the open road, or the family garden, the church was more than comfortably filled with worshippers. The services had been announced as "Friendship Sunday" and the pastor spoke beautifully and masterfully on this wonderful subject. Next Sunday, April 29th, will be designated as "Couple's Sunday" at which it is hoped that every man and wife will attend and set together. Rev. Mr. Mullen announces that the subject of this discourse will be on "Happy Marriages".

The following Sunday, May 6th will be "Laymen's Sunday". On this day, it is the intention of the pastor to turn the entire conduct of the service over to the laymen of the congregation from the invocation on through the sermon and to the benediction. It is hoped that every friend and member of the church will attend.

The attention of everyone is called to the change of hours for Sunday School and for morning worship. Daylight savings time begins Sunday April 29th and beginning then and continuing during the Daylight Saving period, Sunday School will commence at 10 a. m. and church services at 11 a. m., Daylight Saving time.

Clarence E. Beagley who has been conducting an electrical store in the Kruspe building, has vacated this place and has opened new quarters in the Davidson building formerly used as an ice cream parlor.

Wm. T. Beagley has been named as the administrator of the estate of the late Mrs. Rachel Helenhouse. The will was opened and read last Wednesday.

MOKENA

SCHOOL NEWS

The average attendance for the Will County rural schools during the month of March was 95.99% according to Miss Hazel Cowell, Will County Truant Officer. The average attendance for the Mokena school during March was 96.80% or .81 percent more than the average for the Will County rural schools.

The pupils are working hard on the music festival to be given Friday evening, May 5th, at the school auditorium. The Magic Charm, the operetta story of the Pied Piper, will be given by the upper grades while the lower grades will present "The Quest of the Pink Parasol." Group singing and drills will add a further note of interest.

The Mokena High school baseball team motored to Beecher last Friday to play their first game in the Senior Six Conference. Mokena won by a score of 5-1. Wesley Cappel, Mokena pitcher, pitched a no-hit game but allowed one run because of a walk, an error, and a sacrifice hit.

"The Family Upstairs" Big Hit At Cort Theatre

The intimate Cort Theatre at Randolph and Dearborn streets is the most talked of amusement center in the loop and Chicago. Namely, after being dark for practically two seasons, it re-opened the first of the year and has re-established itself amongst the hundreds of thousands seeking clean, wholesome plays. It has attracted the passers-by with its lines of "four deep", trying to purchase tickets at all performances.

The attraction is none other than Leonard Doyle's own conception and direction of "The Family Upstairs". It has been rated by C. J. Bulliet of

The Chicago Daily News as another "Abie's Irish Rose." With its wholesome folk-appeal "The Family Upstairs" is a typical play that should be seen by every family living in or around Chicago, for hundreds of miles.

Not only establishing an envious record (now in its fifth month—something unheard of in the past two seasons of legitimate plays in Chicago), this attraction has re-established a fad that since 1907 has not been done—that of popular price Sunday matinees at 3 p. m., allowing an opportunity for thousands who, through their business connections, haven't the chance to enjoy a legitimate play excepting Sunday afternoons. The Sunday matinee should appeal greatly to merchants in and around Chicago.

With these popular price matinees every Sunday, Leonard Doyle offers ten performances weekly of "The Family Upstairs"—including Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2:30 and every evening at 8:30. Matinee prices, 50c, 75c and $1. Everings, 50c, 75c, $1.50 and $2. The efficient box-office staff of the Cort Theatre is on hand to reserve tickets daily from 9 a. m., to 11 p. m. Mail orders are invited, by sending check or money order made out to the Cort Theatre. Also, the Cort is the only theatre accepting phone reservations. Call Central 0019.

Thomas W. Ross, long a favorite since the days of "The Fortune Hunter," "Checkers," "The New Henrietta," "Your Uncle Dudley," "Jonsey" and many others, is again delighting thousands as "Pa Heller," the street car supervisor and head of "The Family Upstairs." Leonard Doyle, owner, producer, director of this truly delightful exhilarating comedy, comes through with the performance of "Charles Grant," the gingerly lover, in such a manner that he has his audiences convulsed with hearty laughter. Helen Carew, Florence Ross, Gilbert Morgan, Eileen O'Day, Elsa Ryan and Verona Sampson are their associates.

The all-star cast has made "The Family Upstairs" and the Cort Theatre the talk of the town. This stellar loop attraction (best in kind) is now on its merry way to welcome all visitors to the World's Fair. Certainly your visit to Chicago and the loop will be incomplete unless you avail yourself of the opportunity to glance in the mirror of life and see "The Family Upstairs," a choice bit of life of the average family, their trials and tribulations, in a manner that will give you two hours of genuine fun and hearty laughter.

Gigantic Entertainment Project Planned

A project is under consideration for the employment of some 5,000 actors, musicians and performers to present free entertainment at the 1,000 camps of the government employees, 250,000 laborers on forest reserved and reclamation activities.

It is proposed to organize 75 dramatic companies, 75 vaudeville attractions and six fifty piece concert bands and six circus organizations each circus company carrying from 300 to 500 performers and assistants.

Performances will be given in the open air free to everybody, dressing room tents only used. Negotiations and conferences have been held with railroad officials as to transportation facilities but a decision has not been made as to what method will be used, if by rail, which would be preferable, a plan can be formulated whereby the organizations could be self supporting. Don C. Hall of Mokena is the author, originator and promoter of the idea, and if it materializes will have charge of selecting the talent from among the unemployed of more mature years and the rehearsing and directing of the several touring companies.

The Fable of Stationary Touring

By GEORGE ADE

©, Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

ONCE there was a well-to-do and well-mated couple, known as Mr. and Mrs. Sangwin, living in a nifty Residence Street and always planning to hie to the far-away Show-Places. These two did a lot of Summer Traveling early every Spring. They never had been to Europe or the White Mountains or Yellowstone Park except by listening to Burton Holmes and reading Folders, yet they had a Knowledge of Geography which was a great Help when they tackled a cross-eyed Puzzle.

Probably no one in the World knew more about Beauty Spots which they had failed to visit. If they were well informed regarding Switzerland and the Golden Gate and the Piney Woods, it was because they had dreamed about them with so much regulatory. They had been all over the Map without putting a Nick in the Letter of Credit.

Next to picking out a Pearl Necklace in a Show Window and then walking rapidly up the Street, this Chautauqua Method of visiting Africa by Proxy and going to the Mediterranean by reading the Ads in the Sunday Paper, is probably the least expensive of all Dissipations.

It just seemed as if the Dandelions and the Puss-Willows and the hopping Robins, all of them Harbingers of Spring and gay Advance Agents for glorious Summer, seemed to work on the Sangwins and produce a Form of emotional Squiggles.

You could bank on it that every Vernal Equinox, about the Time for changing from Heavy to Light, Mr. Sangwin would look out on a new Crop of tender Leaflets, basking in the Sunshine, and remark, with an Air of Finality, "No two Ways about it, I'm going to arrange my Affairs so we can go Somewhere this Summer."

Everything Sitting Pretty.

"Attaboy!" the Good Wife would exclaim. She was glad to know that at last they would out the Stalling and take a long, dandy Trip. She had everything doped for the Get-away. Clarice could be sent to visit her Aunt Loretta in Springfield. Robert was old enough to be placed at a Summer Camp for Boys, and she had the Address of one recommended by the Higginses. The Gentleman who mowed the Lawns and manicured the Porches could be installed in the Room above the Garage as a Caretaker, and the oldest Clancy Girl could come over and give the House a good-Airing every few Days.

Not to be outdone in the Matter of painful Preparations, the other Half of the Sketch would then explain how he had been organizing Things down at the Office until the Business was practically running itself. He said that He, Himself, that is to say, Mr. Sangwin, was the only one connected with the Shebang who was worth a Hoot when it came to dealing with an Emergency or facing an important Crisis, but he would have the Routine laid out so that even his Associates, with their ossified Turrets and Secondary Intelligence, could worry along or else consult him by Cable.

Everything seemed to be Sitting Pretty. Stimulated by the Coffee, and with the Ham and Eggs between them, they would build Castles in the Air which made the Equitable Building look like a Woodman's Hut. Before Mr. Sangwin left the House they would have their Tickets bought and be walking up the Gangway, bound for Europe, Romance and Adventure.

Many and many a crowded Hour did Mrs. Sangwin devote to the blissful Task of picking out the Liner on which they would plough across the Atlantic. Without ever seeing the Ocean, she came to know more about Vessels than any one on the Shipping Board ever knew. She wrote to every Company and got Bales of Printed Matter including Diagrams, indicating all of the Staterooms, Social Hall, Life Boats, Dining Saloon, Funnels, Drink Parlors, etc., etc. These had to be spread out on the Floor and she would devote happy Days to fussing over the Lay-Out and trying to decide where they would have their Steamer Chairs placed. She and Friend Husband had quite a Run-In over the Eating Arrangements. He wanted to take the Regular Meals and she wanted to go to the Ritz Carlton Restaurant because she had read in the Papers that Constance Bennett and the Marquis and Charley Schwab always had small Tables in the Cafe instead of patronizing the main Gorge.

A Couple of Obstacles.

When the Time came, they were eating Cold Snacks in their own Dining Room. You see, when they made all of their elaborate Plans for going over and turning the Eastern Hemisphere inside out, Mrs. Sangwin had overlooked the Fact that she was Corresponding Secretary of a Local Club which generated Culture and peddled the late News. It seemed that this Club was to have the Honor of entertaining the State Federation during the third week in June. The Sangwins had laid out an Itinerary and were booked for Venice June 18th. What could the poor Woman do? She had forgotten all about the impending World's Event in her own Home Town. She knew that the State Convention would be a Flop unless she was on hand to lend Grace and Dignity and Social Ecstasy to the Proceedings. So she up and told Hiram that she guessed Europe would have to wait because she didn't want to chase away and turn all the Arrangements over to a Bunch of Female Nit-Wits who would get everything balled up.

Hiram heaved a couple of sizable Sighs and said it was all for the best because he felt it his Duty to stick around for the Annual Tournament out at the Country Club. He had gone to the Finals in the Third Flight the Year before and then had been robbed of the Cup because he was buried in the Sand, got a Cuppy Lie, looked up on all of his Pitch Shots, suffered from Heart-Burn because the Steward should have had it analyzed, and an Angle Worm stopped his Putt. The Third Flight Championship had gone to old Mr. Dibbits, who had been a Slacker during the Civil War and had become venerable without achieving Respectability. Venice or no Venice, Mr. Sangwin wanted to be on Hand in July to trim the everlasting Day-lights out of the doddering Wreck. It seemed that Mr. Dibbits had been suffering from Inflammatory Rheumatism all Winter and looked to be about Twenty minutes from a Rosewood Casket. Mr. Sangwin didn't want him to get well but he did want him to live until July and have Strength enough to get to the First Tee. He said it would be a Crime to traipse off to Europe on a mere Pleasure Jaunt when he had a Chance to keep working on his Approach, lengthen the Drive and cop the terrible $8 Piece of Silverware.

That was one Year. No Longer ago than 1926 they departed from their usual Habit of taking a Mid-Summer Journey through Europe in April and May. That Year they were all set for a Motor Tour which was to include all the Best Hotels and the Scenic Splendors of the North American Continent. Mrs. Sangwin had the Blue Book practically memorized, and Mr. Sangwin had bought his Goggles and tested the Thermos Bottles and everything seemed ipskalarious when suddenly Mrs. S. remembered that if she rode too far in a Car she would get the darndest Case of Nervous Headache, so in 1926 the inveterate travelers compromised by attending a Street Carnival pulled off by the B. P. O. E.

For several Years before that War was the Alibi. They would tell all Callers that they were just crazy to take in the Sights on the Other Side, but they were waiting for Conditions to get back to Normalcy. Not once did they ever Confess, even to themselves, that they were scared to Death when they saw a Storm at Sea in a News Reel, and they had no real Longing to be among Foreign Barbarians who spoke strange Languages, and they were secretly in Love with the Corned Beef Hash, the Griddle Cakes and the Double Mattresses of their own comfortable Shack.

Off on a Wild Excursion.

This Year they are at it again. They are just as het up as they ever were. For several Weeks they have been standing in awed Silence in Westminster. They have supped at a famous Night Joint in Paris, where all of the Ladies were not what they might have been but, evidently, were what they seemed to be. They have looked down from dizzy Alpine Heights at the smiling Valleys. They have learned how to pronounce Salle a Manger! They have lolled back in Gondolas, looking at the Moon, and stood in the Coliseum, trying to visualize the spectacular Immensity of a Roman Holiday. They have visited Battle-Fields and purchased Souvenirs and Mrs. Sangwin has seen the big-eyed Manikins parade in their hoop-la-Fineries.

Gosh, but they have been going at some Clip since about April the first! What's more, they really and truly believe that they are going to sail on the Mastodon just as soon as Clarice graduates from High School. If they were not so wrought up they would pause in their Pipe-Dreaming and recall that Mrs. S. has a lot of Fruit to put up this Summer and that the Chamber of Commerce has made Hiram Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements for the Celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Organization of the Fire Department, the dates being July 9th, 10th and 11th. So the big Vacation will go blooey.

However, the Sangwins will not be deprived of their usual Outing. Some Day next month she will fry two Chickens and stuff some Eggs and harpoon them with Tooth-Picks and wrap them in Tissue Paper, and the whole Tribe will motor up the River as far as the old Peters Mill, where Hiram will do some Still Fishing while Mother takes a good Nap, with the Black Cushion under her Head and a Handkerchief over her Face.

MORAL: There is only one Long Trip which cannot be side-tracked.

Invented Oil Lamp

We moderns who nightly obtain our illumination from incandescent bulbs are inclined to forget that the oil lamp in its day was an important improvement over older methods of illumination. Poland, however, has not forgotten, for it is to a Pole, I. Lukasiewicz, a chemist from Lemberg, to whom they give the credit for the production of the first modern oil lamp, says the Scientific American. Poland celebrated recently the fiftieth anniversary of the death of this benefactor of mankind and the eightieth anniversary of his development of the oil lamp. According to Dr. Kazimierz Maslankiewicz, who supplied this information, Mr. Lukasiewicz also was the discoverer of means of purifying and distilling petroleum.—Detroit Free Press.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE HOME GOING OF JOHNNY CHUCK

JOHNNY CHUCK had made up his mind to go back to his old home in the far corner of the Old Orchard. Yes, sir, Johnny was no longer obstinate. He didn't care what Polly Chuck might say. Hunger had quite cured him of all obstinacy. He wanted to get back where the grass was cool and clean and sweet, and where he need hardly more than leave his doorstep to get plenty to eat.

So Johnny Chuck had made up his mind to go back home. The one trouble was that he couldn't decide when to start. You see, it was a long, long way back home. At any rate it was a long way for Johnny Chuck, though you and I would have thought nothing of it. In case of sudden danger along the way there was no place in which to hide. There would be nothing for it but to run or fight. Johnny didn't feel that he could do either. He was stiff and lame and sore from his fight with Reddy Fox.

So Johnny was in a bad fix. He was hungry, very hungry, yet feared to go far enough from his house to get enough to eat. He wanted to go back to his home and Polly Chuck, yet feared to make the journey. Perhaps Sammy Jay guessed what was in his mind, for Sammy suddenly offered some good advice.

"If I were in your place," said Sammy, "I would start for home about noon."

"Who said anything about going home?" growled Johnny Chuck.

"I did," chuckled Sammy as good-naturedly as if Johnny Chuck hadn't

"It's About Time You Came Home," Was All She Said.

growled at all. "Noon is the best time for you to start."

"It's too hot then," grumbled Johnny.

"It's safer than any other time," retorted Sammy. "You know, or ought to know, that Reddy and Mrs. Fox and Old Man Coyote usually are resting then. Bowser the Hound is sure to be napping. If I were thinking of making a journey I certainly would start right about noon."

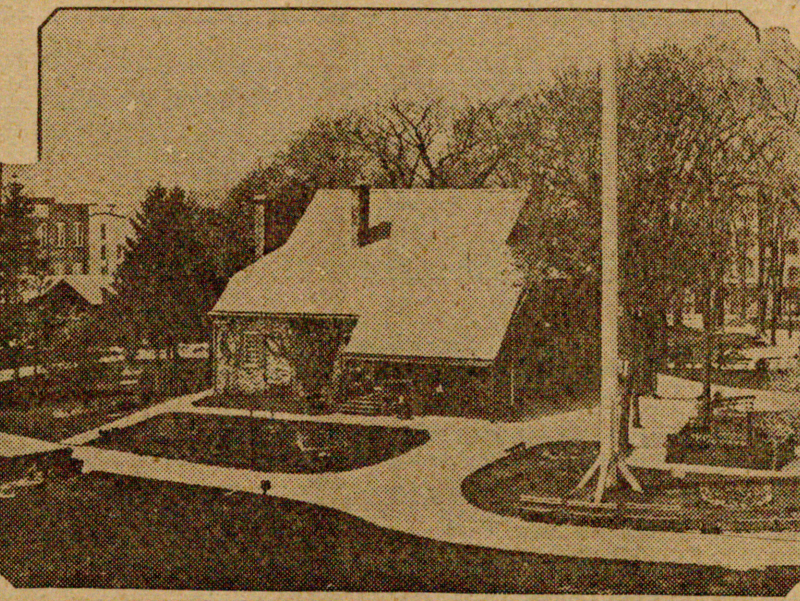

"Huh!" grunted Johnny Chuck, and that was all Sammy could get out of him. Now Johnny knew that Sammy was quite right. He knew that there is no other time of day or night when so few are out and about as during the

Brazil Strengthens Ancient Amazon Fort

TABATINGA, ancient, neglected fort on the upper Amazon river, is being strengthened as a precautionary war measure. It is close to Leticia, Colombian border town recently seized by Peruvians. The fort of Tabatinga dates back several centuries to the explorations of the first Portuguese navigators of the Amazon, and is one of the oldest fortifications in the Western hemisphere. Shown also are Colombian staff officers.

About That Boy

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

ABOUT that boy: I'm worried more than I have ever been before. He's getting older, more a man, He's just about where I began. To make mistakes—of small amount. When nine or ten, but now they count. Yes, more and more he's coming to. Do certain things I used to do.

I'm worried more about that boy—The little things that now annoy His mother, just a word or sign, The same that used to bother mine. I've often wished that I had done A little different when a son, But not imagined, even then, My son would do the same again.

I'm stumped about that boy, because He's getting like his father was, Is not a bit more serious now Than—well, than I was, anyhow. The little tricks of ten or so I knew, of course, that he'd outgrow; He's changing, that is plain to see— Confound it, getting more like me! ©, 1933, Douglas Malloch.—WNU Service.

Bring again to a boil and boil for two minutes. Remove from the fire and stir in the pectin, skim and stir for five minutes to cool, then pour into jelly glasses and cover with paraffin. Let stand a week to set. This makes a nice sandwich spread on any kind of buttered bread.

Mayonnaise.

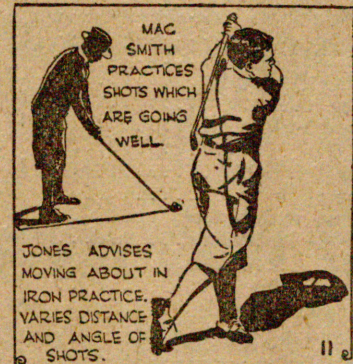

To one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of white pepper add one egg, beat well, add three tablespoons of vinegar, stir until well mixed, then add one teaspoonful of sirup and two cupfuls of good vegetable oil, a teaspoonful at a time until the mixture begins to thicken when the oil is added; add a teaspoonful of boiling water and set away to chill.

Avocado Omelet.

Prepare an omelet as usual and before folding cover with one-fourth inch squares of avocado pear, sprinkle with toasted crumbs. This is an especially delicious dish. The richness of the pear and flavor adds much to the attractiveness of the omelet. Cook turnips with one-third of the amount of Irish potatoes, season and mash together. Use any leftover as a base for salad.

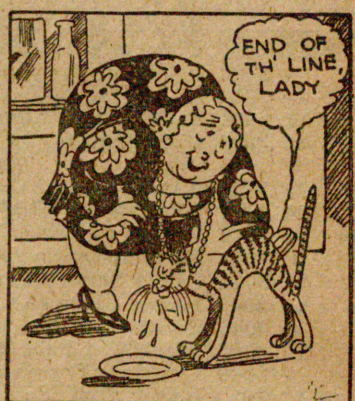

GRAPHIC GOLF

GOLF PRACTICE

PRACTICE in golf should be made as interesting as possible if one is to benefit by it. Merely hitting the ball often becomes boring indeed, and in such a state little progress is made. Bobby Jones overcomes this tendency of mere mechanical practice in iron play by varying the distances, trajectories and angles to the green. He used the flag as the objective in such tune up sessions, for the irons are employed fundamentally in playing shots to the putting surface. Playing too long from one spot tends to grow tiring and the shots after while more or less automatic. On tee shots Jones mixes up the strokes by using a brassie or heavy iron at intervals. While Jones generally confines his practice shots to smoothing out some kink in the swing or to remedy some other difficulty, MacDonald Smith adopts an opposite procedure, that of practicing shots he is playing well. Smith's idea, obviously, is to create a good habit instead of cure a bad one. So fleeting is golf form, however, that often playing and experimenting with a shot that is working well may in time give rise to complications. For polishing up one's game instead of trying to correct a definite fault a short round of golf hitting three or four balls with all the clubs in the bag is advised.

SYNOPSIS

Antoinette Peyton, senior at the University of Maryland, resents Paterson Thayer's attentions to Ivy Welch, seventeen-year-old coed, and there is a stormy scene, the tension being increased by Max Vernon, another student, reproaching Ivy for "breaking a date" with him. Thayer and Vernon threaten each other. Larry Welch, Ivy's brother, professor at the university, is appealed to by Tony to end his sister's friendship with Thayer. Welch and Tony are in love. Welch does not see what he can do in the matter. Tony then tells him she is married to Thayer, but is his wife only in name. Larry determines to see Thayer and end his association with Ivy. Tony persuades him to wait until she has appealed to her husband. She visits him at a fraternity house. Max Vernon, living in the same house, arrives. Tony ends her visit to Thayer and departs. Vernon leaves the house almost immediately afterwards, in a state of excitement. Welch's appeal to Ivy is fruitless. He determines to see Thayer. Despite Ivy's protestations, he does so, and after he leaves, Carmine, frat house janitor, finds Thayer dead, stabbed. The Maryland bank is robbed, the robber escaping with $100,000, after being shot and apparently badly wounded. Jim Hanvey, famous detective, grotesquely obese, and good natured, comes to investigate the robbery.

"The robber was polite, but very positive. He told us to back into the vault which we have on this floor. Then he saw me looking toward the electric buttons which we have all over the place—they are police signals—and he warned me that if I made a move to touch one, he'd kill me. I believed him."

"Wise man," murmured Jim. "He herded us into the safe and followed us. I noticed then for the first time that he carried a little black satchel. He stuffed it with all the currency we had in the safe—about one hundred thousand dollars—and then started back into the bank. Of course, I knew he intended locking Miss Seward and myself in."

"This happened quickly—but it didn't seem quick to us, Miss Seward was crying, but he had warned her not to scream, and she didn't. The robber moved into the main part of the bank. And then—"

He paused and Hanvey prompted. "Then—what?"

"Harmon Burke came back from lunch. He's the cashier and teller. He came in the back way."

"What happened when he came in?" "Plenty," said Fiske grimly. "First thing I knew of Burke's return was when he and the robber started shooting at each other."

Hanvey made a chuckling noise with his lips.

"This Burke must be a real fighter piece of furniture."

"He is. Though I never suspected it before."

"Is he here?"

"Yes. They had him at the hospital until yesterday evening. He was hit in the fleshy part of the leg. He came back this morning."

Fiske touched the buzzer on his desk and Miss Seward answered the summons.

"Ask Mr. Burke if he'd mind stepping in here."

A few seconds later the door opened and a figure entered. Harmon Burke, having seen Hanvey enter the bank, exhibited no surprise at the grotesque appearance of the Gargantuan detective.

But Hanvey blinked several times. So this was the man who leaped into battle with a bank robber! He inspected the cashier with keen interest.

Harmon Burke was a little bit of a man, scarcely more than five feet in height and of a weight which could not have been greater than a hundred pounds. He had roving gray eyes which seemed rather bright; wrists of amazing thinness and hands which seemed too large for his body.

"Harmon," said the bank president, "this is Mr. Hanvey. He's down here for the B. P. A. to look into our little robbery."

Burke hobbled forward and extended his hand. The detective regarded him in amazement.

"You and the robber fought it out?" he questioned.

"Yes, sir."

"You don't look like a gun-fighter."

The little man glanced up in surprise.

"I'm not."

"Hmph! Tell me what happened, if you please."

"Well—" Burke was speaking meticulously. "I went out to lunch immediately after two o'clock. I went out the back way and used the same route back: I suppose Mr. Fiske has explained that we always do that. I returned exactly at two-thirty, because we were to be very busy that afternoon putting up the pay roll for the Maryland mills."

"I came in the back door and saw a man putting currency into a satchel. He was holding a revolver in his right hand. I couldn't see Mr. Fiske or Miss Seward. I immediately suspected that something was wrong."

"A rather natural supposition," agreed Hanvey. "And what happened then?"

"He yelled something at me."

"What?"

"I don't know. I didn't pay any attention to him. I jumped behind the counter and grabbed my revolver. He fired at me but the bullet struck the marble counter. He didn't hit me until I came out into the open again."

The wizened cashier spoke as though gun battles were matters of everyday occurrence.

"You came out?"

"Oh, yes sir! I couldn't shoot at him from where I was. I ran around the corner of the counter just as he started for the front door. I fired at him and he shot at me. That was when he hit me. I was very sorry about that because I fell down and that kept me from following."

"And after you fell down?" prompted Jim.

"I fired again."

"Good Lord! After he had hit you?"

"Yes, sir. I was very lucky, too. I hit him."

"You are sure about that?"

"Quite positive, sir. You see, we found blood on the floor where he had been standing. And there was a trail of blood to the front door and across the sidewalk to the curb."

"The robber ran away?"

"Yes, sir. I regretted very much that I had not struck him in a more vulnerable spot."

"You did a plenty. Now, Mr. Burke, what happened after that?"

The little man flushed with embarrassment.

"I fainted."

"Golly!" breathed Jim, "it was about time."

Randolph Fiske faced Hanvey

"Yes, Sir. I Regretted Very Much That I Had Not Struck Him in a More Vulnerable Spot."

proudly. "Quite a hero, isn't he, Hanvey?"

"Man! You said it! Mr. Burke, is that all you know about the robbery?"

"Yes, sir."

"Had you ever seen the robber before?"

"Not that I can remember."

"No suspicion, eh?"

"No, sir."

Hanvey rose. "That'll be all, Mr. Burke. And I'm really proud to have met you."

Harmon Burke bowed stiffly and hobbled away. When the door closed behind him Hanvey turned to the banker.

"Think of a little runt like him pullin' a stunt like that. His story of the gun fight is accurate?"

"Absolutely—as far as I could see from the safe."

"What did you do while this was going on?"

"Nothing. I was frankly frightened, and, at the time I didn't even know it was Burke who was shooting. From where I was I couldn't see anyone but the robber."

"Burke was correct in stating that the man was hit?"

"There's no question about that. There was a good deal of blood on the floor. He must have been bleeding rather profusely, too, because the trail seemed to get heavier as it approached the curb. A car was waiting there for him."

"Anybody else see the robbery?"

"No."

"Anyone see the escape?"

"No one. A negro boy who works at the gas station across the street said he heard the shooting. But he said he was frightened and so he ducked for cover."

"Then no one saw the robber actually drive away?"

"Yes, I did."

"How?"

"I was still in the safe. The front door was open. I saw him jump into the car."

"There was another man at the wheel?"

"Yes, sir."

Hanvey's bulbous head moved slowly. "Same old routine. It's a wonder more of these little banks don't get stuck up."

He rose and waddled to the door, which he opened. He stood for several seconds staring into the bank, then he moved down the passageway and inspected the rear door route to Oak street. He returned to Fiske's office, lighted another of his terrible cigars and turned kindly eyes on the banker.

"This ain't exactly going to be easy, Mr. Fiske. Except for the stick-up man gettin' hit, there wouldn't hardly be a chance for us, 'cause their program went off elegant. Now what I want to ask you is this: Leavin' the robbery itself out of the conversation for a minute—has there been anything funny goin' on around here recently?"

Anything that was unusual—like strange folks snooping around, or anything like that?"

Fiske hesitated briefly. "No strangers that I've heard of."

"But there has been something peculiar," Hanvey asserted.

"I didn't say so."

"No-o, but you kind of acted it."

Randolph Fiske was genuinely impressed. "To tell you the truth," he said, "I am sure I recognized the car in which the robber drove away."

"So-o! That sounds awful good. Whose was it?"

Fiske toyed with a blotter for a moment. "I hate to say, Hanvey. My suspicions are probably grossly unjust."

"We ain't goin' to bother no innocent folks, Mr. Fiske."

"I hope not. Especially this one. You see, in all the excitement, I couldn't be sure it was his car."

"But you're pretty positive?"

"Exactly."

"Who was it?"

"A young friend of mine who is a student at the college here. Maryland university."

"Hadin't you better tell me the lad's name, Mr. Fiske?"

"He's a nice boy, Hanvey. I've known him for three years. And I'm not positive he was driving the car. His name—" And the banker drew a long breath: "His name is Maxwell Vernon!"

CHAPTER VI

The kindly face of the banker was marked by lines of worry as though he feared he had talked too much. But the ponderous detective did not seem particularly interested.

"Vernon," he remarked. "Maxwell Vernon, eh?"

"Yes. They call him Max."

"Friend of yours?"

"I like him—if that's what you mean."

"What sort of kid is he?"

Fiske hesitated, then leaped forward with a sudden burst of confidence. "If I give you my honest opinion of that boy, Hanvey—will it prejudice you against him?"

"Golly, no."

"He has faults—"

"Who hasn't? Only men I'm afraid of are these goody-goody, ain't-I-honest ones. They're the cute babies! Now about Vernon?"

"It isn't a long story. You know we have a college here. Vernon entered as a freshman three years ago—he's finishing his junior year now. I met him when he came into the bank and opened a ninety-thousand-dollar checking account. It was rather unusual—"

"I should guess yes."

"—And naturally I had a chat with him. This money was the remainder of an inheritance from his mother, she having been his surviving parent."

"Orphan?"

"Exactly. In the past three years Max and I have been quite friendly—so friendly that at times I'm afraid he has rather resented what must have seemed like interference on my part."

"What were you interfering about?"

"Vernon has been running through his money pretty fast. He started slowly in his freshman year, but the word got out that he was very rich and he gathered around himself a group of friends rather more mercenary than genuine. Max Vernon is weak; about as weak as a young man who is not vicious can be. I really believe, though, that there isn't a vicious bone in his body. His first year at college he spent money lavishly. Last year he spent it faster. This year he has run through every cent of what little was left."

"Gosh! He must be a bird!"

"Too many friends for his own good. One in particular—"

"Who?"

"I'll tell you about him directly. To stick to Vernon: when I saw his money dwindling I started having sensible, fatherly talks with him. He always confessed his weakness and always promised to draw in his horns. Then the next thing I knew there'd be a walloping big check come through the bank."

"Did he have all his money here?"

"Every cent. That's why I'm in a position to know so much about him. About a month ago he had run through his money. Didn't have two hundred dollars left. About a week ago he came to me and asked for a loan. He admitted that he was broke. He said he was in a rotten fix—owed a big gambling debt—and felt that his honor was at stake."

"Does he gamble much?"

"A good deal. But that I'll touch on later. He wanted to borrow money. Of course, I explained that I couldn't lend it—at least that the bank couldn't, personally, but he said that the hundred dollars I offered wouldn't help a bit. He needed five thousand."

"No piker, at any rate."

"It isn't that, Hanvey. He just doesn't know anything about money—or if he does, he's learned it in the last month, which isn't very likely. He always had thought that ninety thousand dollars was inexhaustible. Then, suddenly, it was gone. It took him a long time to understand that there was no more. He confessed to me that he had been a fool. He wanted to know what to do, and I suggested that he leave college, get a job and begin to take life seriously. His gambling debt—the debt of honor he rather grandiosely called it—seemed to be preying on his mind. Once or twice he even talked about killing himself. I spoke to him like a Dutch uncle—"

"You thought he meant it?"

ILLINOIS State News

The Illinois 3 per cent sales tax was held unconstitutional by Circuit Judge Jesse R. Brown, Edwardsville. He overruled the state's demurrer to a temporary injunction he issued March 2 restraining collection of the tax. Judge Brown spoke of the tax as class legislation contrary to public policy, and in the case of small sales amounting to confiscation. An appeal has been taken to the Supreme court for a decision before May 15 when merchants are due to make their first payments of the tax. Meanwhile merchants will continue to collect it, as advised by state authorities.

The house passed two of the Burns economy bills, designed to save $15,000,000 a year, according to their sponsor. One cuts the salaries of Supreme court judges from $15,000 to $12,000 a year. The other cuts salaries as follows: Lieutenant governor, $5,000 to $2,500; secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction and attorney general, $10,000 to $7,500, and Circuit and Superior judges, $8,000 to 6,000.

Proclaiming the week beginning April 16 as health week, Governor Horner said preventive measures are necessary to maintain the present high standard of public health. "Definite programs and conscious effort based upon sound, scientific principles are necessary to protect and promote community and individual health," the governor said. "These things may not be left safely to chance and accident."

Governor Horner's beer licensing and regulatory bill was amended in the house to provide for a $50 instead of the $100 state license fee originally asked by the governor.

The Supreme court advanced the sales tax suit on its docket and set April 21 as the date for oral arguments.

The state senate passed a bill to abolish the death penalty for persons under nineteen years of age. The law now says a person must have reached the "age of discretion."

Local option as a "defense" against 3.2 beer was voted down by the Illinois house of representatives while considering the beer control bill. A roll call showed only 39 in favor of a return to the old dry district system, with 96 opposed to it.

STATE BREVITIES

Patrick Haley, about seventy, veteran Illinois Central conductor, was fatally stricken on a special running between Chicago and St. Louis. He died at Clinton.

Ralph Scroggins, twenty-five, drowned at Springfield when his canoe overturned. His companion, Miss Gilda Hicks, was able to swim to safety.

Dr. Theodore J. Menestrina, sixty-four, a veterinary surgeon, died at East St. Louis of injuries suffered when he was attacked by a bull at the national stock yards last June.

Funeral services for Henry Arnold, one of the progressive miners killed in the battle with deputy sheriffs at Duquoin, were held under the auspices of Spanish-American war veterans.

Claude Clark was re-elected president of the Benton city school board, defeating J. Eldred Seymour by a majority of 5 votes out of a total of more than 1,200 polled.

A hit-and-run motorist killed Leonard Petty, thirteen, and a pony he was riding on a highway two miles east of Effingham.

John E. Baxter, general auditor for the Santa Fe railroad since 1925, died at Chicago. He was sixty-four years old and had been in the Santa Fe service for more than forty years.

Walter Kenney, Jr., twenty-one, farmer, died at Loda as the result of a skull fracture. An iron bolt struck him above one of his eyes.

Davis S. Wallace, eighty-three, once rated the state's best speller, who had attended the Bureau county fair for 73 years without a miss, died at Keokuk.

After 18 months of idleness the Dixon plant of the Medusa Cement company, employing 200 men, resumed full operation.

Lorraine Spencer, six, of Whittington, was killed when struck on the head by a wire her sister, Laverne, eleven, was swinging.

Sheriff Davis of Perry county swore in additional deputies to guard against picketing at coal mines by the Progressive Miners' union.

John W. Picton, widely known coal mine operator, seventy years old, died suddenly at Canton.

A new national bank is being organized in Galena to take over the merged assets of Galena National and Merchants National, two of the oldest and largest banks in Jo Daviess county.

Robbers lured the fire department, police, and a night watchman from their posts at Metropolis with a false fire alarm and took $500 in cash from the Simons dry goods store.

At Springfield William Nally paid a fine of $20 for thrashing Police Magistrate Saner. The fight was caused by Saner's naming Nally in a divorce suit.

JESUS SETS NEW STANDARDS OF LIVING (Stewardship Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:1-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. Luke 6:31.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus and the Children.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Choosing Time.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making the Right Choice.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—All for Christ.

I. Concerning Marriage (vv. 1-12). The question touching divorce which the Pharisees temptingly put to Christ brought forth teaching which exhibits marriage in its true light.

1. Marriage should not be degraded by divorce (vv. 1-5). Marriage was instituted by God and was intended to be indissoluble. Moses suffered divorce, limited and regulated it. Its existence indicates the coarseness and perverseness of man. Its real cause is sin. Perhaps the most outstanding evidence of the blighting effects of sin is seen in the increasing number of divorces.

2. Marriage God's primal law (vv. 6-8). The ideal law of life for the subjects of Christ's kingdom is marriage. This is proved by the fundamental fact of sex. "God made them male and female." (v. 6). The union of the male and female natures is physical, mental, and spiritual. In marriage the male and female natures are mutually complemented—"They twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh" (v. 8).

3. Marriage has God's sanction (v. 9). When God created Eve and brought her unto Adam, he declared that man should leave his father and mother and cleave unto his wife and that they shall be one flesh. God performed the first marriage ceremony.

4. Remarriage of the divorcer is adultery (vv. 10-12). The marriage relation can only be dissolved by death and sin. Marriage is for life. Divorce for other than marital infidelity does not give the right to remarriage.

II. Concerning Children (vv. 13-16).

The union of the male and female natures according to God's primal law of marriage, lays the foundation for family life. The normal issue of such union is children. It was fitting that Jesus in connection with the divine law of marriage should set forth his estimate of children. Christian men and women will regard children as the property of the Lord and will esteem it a high and holy privilege to train them for him. Observe:

1. Children brought for the touch of Jesus (v. 13).

2. Parents rebuked by the disciples for bringing their children (v. 13).

3. Jesus' reply (vv. 14, 15).

a. "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God" (v. 14).

b. "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein" (v. 15).

4. Jesus' action (v. 16). He took the children up in his arms and blessed them. Where Christ rules, childhood is sacred.

III. Concerning Riches (vv. 17-31).

1. The young ruler's question (v. 17). This young man was in earnest. He came running and kneeled to Jesus. He was a young man with a lovable personality. Jesus loved him.

While moral, earnest, and courageous, he had a defective theology. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works.

2. Jesus' reply (vv. 18-20). He put his finger on the weak spot in the young man's life. He knew that possessions gripped his heart, revealing the fact that he was a covetous man, a violator of the tenth commandment.

3. Lacking one thing, and yet lost (vv. 21, 22). When the Lord pointed out to him that the love of money was the defect of his life, he chose wealth rather than Christ, and perhaps parted company with the Lord forever.

4. The peril of riches (vv. 23-27). Jesus said, "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!" Discerning the astonishment of the disciples he said further, "How hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!" The difficulty does not lie in the fact that a man possesses riches, but that riches possess him. Wealth is a mighty power and in itself is good. It will provide bread for the hungry, and send the Gospel to the ends of the earth. It is a short step from the possession of riches to trusting in them.

The Best Proof

The best evidence of the inspiration of the Word of God is found in the word itself. When studied, loved, obeyed, and trusted, it never disappoints, never misleads, never fails. It satisfies.—J. Hudson Taylor.

The Noblest Life

The noblest life is to live as his children that we may reveal to others the blessings of his presence, his guidance and his peace.—Thomas J. Garland.

What in Place of the Marriage Tie?

Psychoanalysts Have Not as Yet Offered Real Alternative.

A New York newspaper has been conducting a sort of forum of well-known writers, on the unique question, "Is Monogamy Out of Date?"

It started with an article by a woman lecturer to the effect that not only are we outgrowing monogamy, but that the time will come when one wife to one husband will no longer be considered the ideal state!

Among the opposition is Dr. A. A. Brill, the well-known Freudian psychoanalyst. When he was thirty years younger, says Doctor Brill, he thought that monogamy was doomed, that even free love would make a better alternative. But after years of experience and observation he is convinced that monogamy cannot be displaced.

And the reasons?

MOKENA

SEMMLER JOHN—In loving memory of my beloved father who died
17 years ago, April 28, 1916.

The Golden Gates were opened wide,
A gentle voice said "come",
And Angels from the other side
Welcomed our loved one home.

WM. SEMMLER

The fire plugs in Mokena were given a bright red coat of paint by Karl Kraus Thursday.

The local students attending the

Friday Night, April 28
Beer on draught or in bottles. Everyone invited.

When we say "fresh" paint, we mean just that—paint that's freshly mixed right at the job to suit your house and tinted to the exact shade you want.

No coat of cloth will fit all persons and no coat of paint will fit all surfaces. Every job of ours is a made-to-measure job... made to measure up to a high standard of quality.

We use Dutch Boy white-lead because it gives us a chance to do the kind of work that makes satisfied customers. Ask us for an estimate on a real paint job—no obligation, of course.

This is Couple Sunday in our church, which means just what the word suggests. It is a Universal Wedding anniversary day in our church.
The services planned so as to make it a renewal of the wedding day.

Couples are requested to sit in seats reserved for them in the front of the church, the other members of the family remaining in the rear seats.

Where ever possible, will the husbands remember their wives on this day with a buttonhole or corsage bouquet.

The Pastors class will meet in the church Friday, at 4 p. m.

Senior Choir practice, Friday eve-ing at 7:30.

Junior Choir practice, Saturday at Story hour at 1:30 Saturday, in the parsonage.

Sunday, May 7, the Lay-men of our church will have entire charge of the service. The general theme to be presented by our men will be
"What The Church Needs Most".
Plan now to hear the several talks to be given on this topic.

This same theme will be discussed one week later, May 14, by our Lay-women.

Both of these services will prove fruitful to the life of our church.
